Hey man,

I was hoping I could hit you up for some original music. I'm looking to do like a mini documentary series about some of the questionable things going on around this pandemic. The mad censorship lately around all things anti main stream narrative make you question what's really going on. "Conspiracy theories" have never been silenced like this before, so want to look into a lot of the stuff that is being silenced and taken down and do some interviews and drill into statistics etc. to see what is conspiracy, what is theory and what is fact, looking into the roll big tech has had in silencing certain narratives. I doubt it will ever get picked up, it's only in its fledgling stage, but would love some music to try get a pitch together.

Looking some dark ambient style background music. A few tracks that can be played behind interviews or behind news statistics etc. with overlayed videos (giving that vibe that something sinister is going on). Think almost like a black mirror episode vibe that has become a reality if you know what I mean, so it should feel uneasy, but maybe throw in a more hopeful sounding track in there so it's not all doom and gloom. Perhaps just some atmospheric background noise aswell. If you are up for it I would love you to just send me through some sample stuff that I can use for demo version. I know we have had some interesting talks about this stuff in the past so wanted to hit you up first before just turning to fiverr for music.

Let me know what you think

Dave
