

The learning experience of Academic Skills

Bogdan Snyhyr-2419277

At the beginning of everything, I really liked the descent to study. To absorb the information that students should receive in lectures; the teacher takes constant breaks so that all the information is accepted for our minds. This technique helped me a lot in perceiving new information.

The unusual in this module was difficult for me to call each week as a new object to study. In all other educational institutions known to me, it takes at least a month to study one module in the first week, I began to study management techniques or time management. There are many methods, but we have studied only a couple of them that will be most useful for all types of people. For me, the most memorable method is the Pomodoro method. The idea of concentrating on work and at the same time not losing motivation is the most difficult thing to do. This method has something I love. Breaks and concentration. Personally, I use this method for teaching or when I am doing important work. For example, driving lessons. This is a good method for studying theory. I also try to use this method not only in my studies, but also in sports. or by life situations

The method of quick memorization or waiting for note taking a thing that is very necessary in collecting information and data Graph. one of the ways to note taking and understanding. The most common and simple, but effective in collecting clear information, of all the ways to gather information, this method was the easiest and most memorable for me

For the general understanding of this module, all these methods are very useful in collecting information that will be needed in life. The part of the information that is not needed is automatically sorted by the brain and forgotten. Therefore, it is best to remember the information in a short form so that it can be easily remembered

In evaluating my experience, I was very surprised. Most modules at universities have a large set of study. In this Module, all knowledge and information were presented in an easy and understandable form for the student. For a student who is used to teaching according to the old system, this is quite a novelty. It was very unusual that in this module the students were of different age-old categories. Someone is younger, and someone is older. It also has experience in making new acquaintances and communicating with different people

The only thing I like most about this module is that the teachers, like all the staff at Univericet, are always happy to help in any situation, whatever it may be. This shows their professionalism . From the experience of a novice student, this gives a very good moral stability for learning

