Common Assessment Criteria Applied	Marks Available	Marks Awarded
General Comments
Nice work on presenting a website that demonstrates skills learned in class. Only comment here was to put more functionality in the website, that would have made for a better solution - shame you did not publish this on a hosted website	100	73

2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills
Considering this is your first JS/jQuery website, you have shown good skills throughout the website (more differing types of validation types would have helped). It was just a shame that you do not implement more "features" into this solution. Only downside is the lack of commenting (essential)	15	8
3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills
Although there is a constant discussion on how you developed this solution via JS/jQuery, this is about your approach i.e., from foundation of ideas to implemented solution, if you focused on the function and given a smaller range of code snippets, a defined path to development could have been realised	15	10
4. Practical Application Skills
A well presented website that demonstrates a number of JS/Jquery skills and more importantly easy of the eye - dark/light mode works well and links to external sources all work fine. Data validation shows your skill in validating user input - but as mentioned in class, move diverse validation types should have been included. Just one minor observation - should there be a link back to the home page ?	70	55
5. Transferable Skills for Life and Professional Practice
