

My reflection about my experience in Turkey

what

on the day I started my first ever holiday in Turkey, the weather was amazing it was warm, and the hotel had so many pools which i was really pleased about as there was so many people there! The staff was really kind, full of respect and communication were outstanding but as I got around the hotel i was disappointed because the hotel wasn't good as i had imagined as i seen on the website. I was really excited about this holiday, but the food wasn't great at all. It was poor even though i booked a 5-star hotel i was shocked about the food as it was the same food each day! So, me and my family had to pay extra and just go out for food, which was fun but a waste of money as we got an all-inclusive, I have to say the hotel had so many varieties of activities which was a bonus for our holiday.

SO WHAT

Although I was really disappointed with the food and the hotel itself. Me and my family did try our best to have an amazing time and ignore the bad stuff about the hotel, instead of complaining me and my family decided to solve the problem by trying each day new activities to do for an example we went for a Turkish bath, boat ride and rides which me made me a little happier .Although the food was the same it was split in sections breakfast lunch dinner me and my family really enjoyed breakfast since it a simple meal but other foods like dinner we chose to eat to eat out which wasn't the best but we managed .

Now what?

This experience has taught me to thoroughly investigate vacations and hotels rather than assuming they will be nice just because they have five stars. My family and I would have been happier and it would have cost me a lot less if I had simply done my research, but other than that i did have fun with my family and hopefully my next holiday will be better.
