

This piece of work presents a well-written For completion by Marker 1 : renew of the selected texts, Comments: and a very thorough outline of Descartes' Meditations. (Considering the word count - you've given yourself a difficult task to renew nearly all of the Meditations, as well as the chapter from Scholfield.) There is an emphasis on critique, & you present well-sustained claims. In places there is scope to develop criticisms further, particularly in relation to D's Meds. But, overall, this is a well-considered annotated bibliography that would provide a very useful & accurate resource for somebody deciding whether to read these texts.
