

Self-assessment Criterion for the Report

The following criterion for self-assessment help you to self-check whether you are presenting your work as expected:

- Does your report have a table of contents?
- Is the report presented in well-structured and numbered sections?
- Did you present an introduction setting the tone of your report?
- Did you present the problem identified in the health care system under investigation with clarity and did you identify all the elements to create a Rich Picture?
- Did you discuss both centralisation and decentralisation issues that contributed to your identified problem?
- Did you identify and discussed a relevant leadership theory critically applied to your specific case study (e.g., Laissez-Fair, authoritarian, democratic etc.)?
- Did you address the “Points to consider” during the leadership theory discussion?
- Did you analyse the problems identified in your case study, by including, evidence/statistics/data and improvement strategies?
- Did you present clear recommendations?
- Did you present a summative conclusion which summarises the key points discussed in the report?
- Did you present a comprehensive list of minimum 30 references using the Harvard referencing style (Cite Them Right guidelines) ?
- Overall, in your discourse did you evidence an engagement with wider sources of literature to support all your key assertions?
