

Mindmap

Not cheating

You copy two sentences from a website into your assignment and do not add a citation.

Cheating or not?

You use AI only to check grammar and spelling. You write all ideas yourself.

Cheating or not?

You write: "Electric cars are becoming more popular." This is general knowledge.

Cheating or not?

You write your work in your native language, and then use Google Translate to translate it into English. You submit the English translation.

Cheating or not?

You share your own opinions and ideas. You do not use any source.

Cheating or not?

Cheating

You take a sentence from a book, change three words, and do not add a citation.

Cheating or not?

You ask AI to write a whole paragraph for you and you paste it into your work without saying it came from AI.

Cheating or not?

Your friend sends you their assignment. You copy parts of it into your own work.

Cheating or not?

You and your classmate talk about the assignment. After the discussion, your classmate asks you to send your paragraph so they can use your sentences in their own work. You send it, and they copy some of your words.

Cheating or not?

You cannot remember where your ideas came from, so you add random citations that you did not use.

Cheating or not?

